

I own a Digital tv decoder but can not receive over-the-air digital broadcasts yet. I am patiently waiting for the day when I can view them. But if my receiver is rendered obsolete and I must purchase a new decoder to conform with yet another copyright standard, I feel there is no need to waste my time with it anymore. Several hundred dollars for a single receiver is price I am not willing to pay again. Don't punish those who chose to support digital broadcasts early. We are not thieves.
